Announces

Implementation Science and Research Methodology WORKSHOP

in collaboration with

Christian Medical College, Ludhiana (Host Institution),
Public Health Foundation of India (PHFI), Gurugram &
St. John's Medical College and Research Institute, Bengaluru

Date: 9-10 November 2022

Ludhiana, Punjab

Implementation science research is critical for high impact of evidence based interventions at local, regional and national levels. Knowledge and practice of these principles and methods is relatively new in India.

The ISCR-ACCRI, in collaboration with CMC, Ludhiana, will hold a 2-day implementation science workshop on 9 and 10 November 2022.

This 2-day training program will be facilitated by some of the field's global experts and aims to train early- and mid-career researchers in the field of implementation science.

This interactive workshop will enable you to:

- Evolve relevant research questions and design appropriate studies
  - Use appropriate theoretical models, research designs, and measurement
  - Undertake real-world implementation science research
  - Implement and translate research findings into policy and practice, and.
  - Collaborate and network within India and globally in the new field of implementation science
- CONVENOR (ACCRI): Dr. Denis Xavier
  - CO-CONVENOR (ACCRI): Dr. Ramesh Jagannathan
  - WORKSHOP DIRECTOR: Dr. Kavita Singh

Faculty will include:

- Prof. D Prabhakaran, PHFI, Gurugram
- Prof Monika Arora, PHFI, Gurugram
- Prof Shifalika Goenka, PHFI, Gurugram
- Prof. Jeyaraj Pandian, CMC, Ludhiana
- Prof. Mark Huffman, Washington University, St. Louis, USA
